You cannot use existing names that are already in the system. In addition, it must end with post-fix bot. For example, TetrisBot, or tetris_bot.To keep things simple, I usually use the same string for name and username. A new token will be generated to access the HTTP API. Be sure to keep it safe to prevent others from using it to control your bot.Image from AuthorPrivacy in group chatIf you intend to use your bot within a Telegram group, you need to understand how privacy works ³ Telegram. By default, the bot will not receive all messages from a group chat. Based on unofficial documentation³ only receive:Command messages starting with a bar/symbol (e.g. /help).Responds to messages sent by your bot.Service messages (adding³ or removing people ³ the group).Channel messages that the bot is a member of.Generally, Telegram recommends using commands to interact with bots. If there are multiple bots in the same group, you can postfix their user names at the back of each command to avoid confusion. Note that you need to process and manage it yourself on your server:In the latest version³ the @ symbol can be used when creating bots on the Ã¢ where users can interact with their bot through online queries without sending a message. Create a new Python file in your working directory. For simplicity, I will name it TestBot.py (modify the name accordingly). Importing the Modularity Import ³ ³ at the top of the file: ³ a new instance that instantiates a new Telebot instance passing in the telegram token we created earlier: format textby default, parse_mode is set to none, so the text will be sent as is. If you prefer to have basic formatting characters, such as bold, italic, and underline, you can specify this while you instantiate TeleBot.html: html.markdownv2-based formatting: markdown.please note that it is noted that you cannot combine both types of formatting in your messages. Set the parse_mode during instantiation ³ propagate the format to all returned responses. If the need arises to send messages in different formats, it is recommended to set it to none during instance creation ³ pass the parse_mode pair when sending individual messages. In this tutorial, I am using the default parse_mode. Feel free to experiment. Inbound message handling is to create a new message handler that represents a set of filters for incoming messages. If a message passes the filter, call the functions decorated with the original message as a meter. At the time of writing, it comes with the following filters: Commands: Returns True if Message.Content_Type is Text and Message.text: starts with any of the strings present in the predefined list. function.content_types: returns true if message.content_type is in the predefined list.regexp: returns true if message.content_type is text and re.search (regexp_args) is true. This is a simple message handler that handles /start commands. /Start is automatically when a user interacts with the bot for the first time after clicking the botÃ ³ n Start. Commands to messages that begin with the /.ContinÃe sign by adding another message handler that instead uses the func filter under the ³ code. You can define your own ³ function in which messages will be handled by this function³ n decorated as you pass the criteria. Â I'm going to set the return to True because I want to control all incoming messages.³ then call the reply_to function³ which accepts two meters:A Message object representing a message. It contains a lot of information ³ such as message_id, date, text, etc. You can simply pass the input message variable.A string represents the message returned from the bot.Â LetÂ¢ Â is set to message.text to repeat the same text to the user.Note that message handlers are tested in ³ order in which they are declared. A robot will return a response from the first matching message handler. Be sure to place high-priority message handlers, such as commands, at the top of the command.PollingNow, let's Â add a finishing touch to our file with the following ³: polling creates a new thread that calls an internal function ³ to automatically retrieve updates and pass messages to its message handlers.Â is a blocking function that means that the code c³ below it won't run. Be sure to place it at the end of your file. Also, do not call it more than once, or an error will occur. If you are looking to scale your project, use a webhook instead. Running multiple probe servers ³ not working!The probe function ³ accepts the following parameters:none_stop: A Boolean value to determine whether the probe should stop when an error occurs. The default value is False.interval: An integer represents the interval between poll requests. By default, it is set to 1. If set to any other value greater than 0, the Waiting for response will be affected: waiting time in seconds for long polls. The default value is 20. It can find the complete code in the following GIST: Care that the terminal is now pointing to the work directory where your your Make sure that your machine is connected to the internet. Run the following command to start polling, modifying the name as required:Head back to Telegram and start chatting with your bot. You should get a reply whenever you send a message privately, or in a group where your bot is a member:Image by AuthorYou can easily distinguish private incoming messages from group ones by checking the message.chat.type variable. The available options are as follows:PrivateGroupSupergroupChannelLet¢ÂÂÃs modify the handle_all_message functions with the following control flow:Re-run your polling service again and you should get a different response when sending a message to a group.Now, we have a new problem: Our bot will respond to every single message in the chat if you have set it to be admin or have disabled the privacy setting. In order to resolve this, set another condition that limits the reply if and only if the bot is tagged in the message. Replace username_of_your_bot with the username that you¢ÂÂÃve set:For now, our bot is only capable of replying to text messages. It will not work properly when the users send a file or sticker. You can create a new message handler and specify the accepted content_types in a list. The following code illustrates how you can echo the same sticker back to users:Please note that I¢ÂÂÃm using the send_sticker function instead of reply_to. This is simply because reply_to is just a convenient function that calls send_message internally. Check the official documentation for the complete list of all the available content_types and its corresponding functions.Re-run your server and you should see the something like this when you send a sticker to your bot:Image by AuthorCongratulations on completing this tutorial! Let¢ÂÂÃs recap what we¢ÂÂÃve learned today.We started off with creating our bot in Telegram by interacting with BotFather. We also created a new virtual environment and installed the pyTelegramBotAPI package in it.After that, we moved Si Elif Elif to instantiate a new TeleBot instance based on the token that we obtained early from the bot creation. We implemented a few message handlers to handle commands and all the incoming messages.Apart from that, we also learned to distinguish between private and group messages. We can easily handle stickers by specifying the accepted content_types in our message handlers.By now, you should be able to create your own Telegram bot locally in your machine, as long as it¢ÂÂÃs connected to the internet.Thanks for reading this article ¢ÂÂÃ I hope to see you again in the next one! one!
